Story

A contractor in Israel was hired to build a new development. One day when he was looking over the plans, he realized that one of the buildings there would be used for a club, which would involve some not-so-tznius things. He thought "How can I build a building in which such terrible avairos would be done there. So, he went to a Da'as Torah and he told him build the building, but when you are building the club, have in your mind and tefillah that you are building a Bais Medrash. A few days later the club decided they don't like the location and they sold it to a Jewish person who used the building to open a Kollel.

Halacha

Topic: Hilchos Shabbos

What is considered cooking, baking, roasting, or frying (regards to the Melachah of Bishul – cooking)? (Part 2 of 3)

4. FRYING

There are a few different methods for frying food:

A. A SMALL AMOUNT OF OIL

As mentioned last week, pan frying an item with a small amount of oil is considered baking.

B. DEEP FRIED

Deep-frying is considered cooking, as mentioned last week.

C. MEDIUM AMOUNT OF OIL

Food fried in a medium amount of oil (i.e., with more oil than just to coat the pan, but not deep-fried) is a Machlokes between the Rabbanim regarding whether the food is cooked or baked.
