Recap:

Rav Aharon was struggling on a piece of Gemara and then someone gave him an envelope that explained all the questions he had. He looked up and saw it was the town wagon driver that had died a few years ago. He explained that he had saved someone's life in that merit he was able to give R' Aharon the letter...

Story: Shlichus from Shamayim: Chapter 4:

I loaded him on to my wagon and detoured to the nearest town to try to save his life. "I brought him to the 1st house I saw and slowly nursed him back to health. I remained with him for an entire day, giving up my parnassah that I could have earned, until I ascertained that he was on his way to recovery. Then I gave him whatever money I had on me, and I went on my way." The wagon driver turned to Rav Aharon. "Rebbe, this was the single mitzvah that I performed in my lifetime. Bais din Shel ma'alah ruled that because saving someone from death is like saving an entire world, I merited olam haba and I did not need to become a gilgul. Instead, I received a room in Gan Eden, where I wait to preform my Shlichus."

With those last words, the wagon driver disappeared.

The end!
Until next time...

Riddle of the Week

A man walks into a bar, orders a drink and starts talking to the bartender. During their conversation the customer learns that the bartender has 3 children. "How old are they?" asks the customer. "The product of their ages is 72." The bartender replied. "That is not enough information." The customer said. "If you go outside and look at the building number posted at the top of the door of the bar, you will see the sum of their ages." The bartender said. The man checked and returned to the bar. "That is not enough information." Said the customer. The bartender smiles and says "My youngest son just loves strawberry ice cream." The customer grins. "Now I know how old they are." How old are they and why?

The first person to go to Shalom Frenkel with the correct answer, will receive a bottle of soda.

The deadline is Sunday morning by breakfast. Only members can receive the reward.

Sponsorship is available. See Shalom Frenkel or Shmuel Schiff.
